Cutting Edge; Creating Risk

We all love technology. It's exciting, makes life easier and continually contributes to our economy. Yet, with new cool tools come new risks, new security standards and regulations, plus new disclosure and notification laws. The breadth of potential exposures combined with our deep technology experience comes together in "ITS"—our menu-driven insurance program that combines critical first- and third-party information risk coverages anywhere in the world, all the time.

Comprehensive and convenience: Through ITS, we offer the convenience of all cyber coverages on the same form, along with targeted breach recovery resources delivered by expert third-party vendors. ITS combines four third-party coverages and six first-party coverages in a single, easy-to-follow form, all with just one set of exclusions, definitions and conditions. Additionally, ITS is non-auditable with a liberalization clause and a right to defend suits for non-monetary relief.

Where There's Information, There's Risk

Viruses, corruption or loss of data, denial of service attacks, unauthorized access and extortion...the list seems endless. And today, every business, large or small is at risk. Yet no matter how robust your intrusion and detection program, no business is fully protected from financial loss without proper insurance protection. But it's not just your company.

You may rely on outsourced solutions or cloud computing networks, pushing your exposures beyond fully controllable environments, and traditional insurance policies may not cover these new exposures. That's where ITS comes in.

Third-party liability coverages for damages and defense expenses:

- Errors or omissions is a major exposure for most technology companies. Imagine the financial or consequential damage caused if your product or service does not work correctly—or fails to work altogether. Through our broad coverage, you have enhanced protection that offers enterprise-wide language related to providing your services or your product.
- Information risk liability—includes coverage for corporate and personal confidential and proprietary information of others in your care, custody and control, and coverage for acts of a rogue employee without corporate officer knowledge.
- Communication liability—includes infringement, copyright infringement and misappropriation of name or likeness including access and content activities.
- Privacy administrative proceeding—includes defense expenses and privacy administrative or regulatory fines and consumer redress liability associated with the violation of a privacy regulation.
